Introduction

The Trade Unionist and Socialist Coalition (TUSC) stood over 300 candidates in the ‘Super-Thursday’ elections on May 6th.

TUSC contested three regional lists and three constituencies in the Scottish parliament elections; all five regional lists for the Welsh Senedd contest; the all-London list for the Greater London Authority assembly and three GLA constituencies; the city Mayoral contests in Bristol and Liverpool; and 272 council seats (in 268 wards or county council divisions) in 89 local authorities.

The TUSC core policies for the different contests can be found at the links below:

- The Scottish Parliament elections: <https://www.tusc.org.uk/17486/01-03-2021/core-manifesto-for-the-2021-scottish-parliament-election>
- The Welsh Senedd elections: <https://www.tusc.org.uk/17487/01-03-2021/tusc-wales-policy-platform-for-the-2021-welsh-parliament-elections>
- The local council elections: <https://www.tusc.org.uk/17485/01-03-2021/tuscs-core-policy-platform-for-the-may-2021-local-elections>

This was the first TUSC election campaign since 2018. The coalition had been established in 2010 to enable trade unionists, community campaigners and socialists from different parties and none, to stand against pro-austerity establishment politicians under a common banner and an agreed platform of core policies. Within that framework hundreds of TUSC-authorized candidates had stood in elections, polling over 375,000 votes between them – until 2018.

TUSC had already re-calibrated its electoral activity after the unexpected but warmly welcomed victory of Jeremy Corbyn as Labour leader in September 2015.

It did not contest the general elections fought under his leadership – in 2017 and 2019 – and, for other contests, pursued a rigorously selective approach so that TUSC candidates could only stand against so-called ‘Labour’ candidates who opposed Jeremy and were continuing to implement austerity policies locally.

In 2018 the TUSC All-Britain Steering Committee decided to suspend all electoral activity until further notice. But at a relaunch meeting last September, recognising that the changed situation required a changed response, it agreed to resume standing candidates in elections, starting in the May 2021 contests.

Representatives from the biggest component organisation of TUSC, the RMT transport workers’ union, reported to the September steering committee that the union’s national executive committee had debated the matter over the summer.

They had agreed a resolution that, “in the new conditions of a Starmer leadership and the continued implementation of austerity cuts by many Labour-led authorities, we believe it is correct for TUSC to lift its suspension of electoral activity”. And that is what the TUSC steering committee agreed too.

Against the background of the deep economic and social crisis triggered by the Covid-19 pandemic it was time to ensure that politicians from whatever party who tried to pass the costs of the crisis onto the working class faced the possibility of a challenge at the ballot box.

TUSC is back

This year's election campaign saw the biggest number of TUSC candidates since the elections in 2016. Overall TUSC candidates won a total of 46,622 votes, the largest number won in a single year's elections since those that took place in May 2015 – in the era before Jeremy Corbyn's leadership.

Amongst the highlights was the TUSC candidate for the mayor of Bristol, Tom Baldwin, polling 3,194 votes, more than double the score achieved when TUSC first contested this post in 2012 (see page seven). In Liverpool, the vote of anger at the austerity policies and allegations of corruption against the previous Labour mayor, was consciously deflected by the media towards the safe protest candidacy of Stephen Yip, a charity campaigner and former Labour Party member who stood as an independent. Nevertheless the TUSC candidate Roger Bannister polled a creditable 2,912 votes on a clear socialist platform.

Overall, in one tenth of the wards or county council divisions contested the TUSC candidate polled five percent or more. The mean average vote for TUSC council candidates was 2.5%.

Putting this into proportion the BBC, discussing whether the Green Party was now the third or fourth biggest electoral force, estimated that they polled eleven percent on average in the seats that they contested (just over four times the TUSC score). But what is clear is that TUSC didn't get remotely near a quarter of the coverage the Greens got from the BBC or the other established media!

Or, indeed, other alleged 'alternative voices' given airtime by the media, such as UKIP and Nigel Farage's Brexit Party, contesting these elections as the rebranded Reform UK. Interestingly, across all of the council seats where a UKIP or Reform candidate was up against a TUSC candidate, the difference in votes was marginal. And these were parties that between them scored 33% in the all-UK European elections – with the Brexit Party topping the poll – just 23 months ago. There are no stable voting patterns any more.

Of course the TUSC results are still modest – the only victory achieved was a candidate elected unopposed to a local town council! But to have organised a campaign on this scale in just over a matter of seven months from the decision made back in September is an achievement in itself. TUSC is definitely back and up for the battles ahead.

A note on statistical methods

The results tables include a figure for the percentage of the vote won by TUSC in each council ward contested.

How this figure is worked out is straightforward in a contest for one seat – the percentage figure for the TUSC candidate being the percentage of all the votes cast.

But what about multi-seat contests where two or three councillors are elected from the same ward? Particularly, for example, where the council only publishes the votes cast for each candidate but not the turnout, or the size of the electorate? How to present such results, particularly where a party fields just one candidate in a two or three-seat contest, is a controversial question of psephology, the social science of election analysis.

TUSC has now been using the same method to calculate votes in multi-seat wards since 2011, which has the advantage of allowing a comparison across different year's election results.

In an example from the elections of that year, in Leicester's Rushey Mead ward the single TUSC candidate polled 272 votes, ahead of one Liberal Democrat candidate but behind the other two. It was a fact that 4.9% of the 5,524 people who voted in Rushey Mead used one of their three votes for TUSC. But they actually cast a total of 13,917 votes (which meant incidentally that 2,655 potential votes were not used). So how should TUSC's share of support in the ward be calculated? It could have been presented as a percentage of the total votes cast, 1.9%, and some councils do present the figures in this way. On the other hand, if all the ward's candidates' votes were presented as a percentage of the 5,524 actual voters, the total number of votes would be 300%.

So the method used is to record the TUSC vote (or the highest TUSC vote in a multi-seat ward with more than one TUSC candidate) as a percentage of the aggregate of the highest votes of all the parties contesting the ward, the highest vote being taken as a maximum expression of a particular party's support.

In the Rushey Mead example there wasn't much deviation from the percentage of ballots cast method. The aggregate of the highest Labour vote (2,789), the highest Independent (1,039), the Tories' highest vote (861), the top Lib Dem vote (556), and TUSC's 272 votes, came to a total of 5,517. On this calculation, TUSC again polled 4.9% in the ward.

This method is neither a 'correct' nor 'incorrect' way of presenting the support there for TUSC. It is just another method, with its limitations openly acknowledged.

Elections 2021: TUSC results in Scotland and Wales

The Scottish Trade Unionist and Socialist Coalition (Scottish TUSC) contested three regional lists and three constituencies in the Scottish parliament elections on May 6th. The draft manifesto was discussed and agreed at a Scottish TUSC conference on February 20th (see <https://www.tusc.org.uk/17486/01-03-2021/core-manifesto-for-the-2021-scottish-parliament-election>).

For the elections to the Welsh Senedd the TUSC Wales steering committee decided to concentrate on the regional lists, contesting all five – although in a totally arbitrary decision, the BBC ruled that only lists with four candidates on them would qualify to be included in their election coverage which effectively excluded TUSC from even a minimal mention.

The core policies that TUSC Wales candidates were required to endorse to be included on the TUSC lists can be seen at <https://www.tusc.org.uk/17487/01-03-2021/tusc-wales-policy-platform-for-the-2021-welsh-parliament-elections>

Elections 2021: Mayoral results & the London Assembly

There were two directly-elected Mayoral posts that were contested by TUSC candidates this year, for the cities of Bristol and Liverpool, and the first preference results from these contests are listed below. In both cities the Labour candidate won after transfers.

These two city Mayoralties were also contested by TUSC in 2012 and 2016 – the 2012 election by the former Liverpool 47 councillor Tony Mulhearn – and the results from then are also listed.

Elections 2021: English council wards 'league table'

Below is a league table of all the results of five percent or more achieved by TUSC candidates in the English local council elections on May 6th.

A total of 26 TUSC candidates reached this benchmark. The mean average vote for TUSC council candidates overall was 2.5%.

The results are listed in percentage order, giving the votes won by the TUSC candidate (the highest placed where applicable) and with the percentage vote in parentheses (see Note on Statistical Methods on how this was calculated in multi-seat wards).
